Description
The results of the visual focus of attention are needed in the PersonHypothesis. While a HeadObject carries only the best target, the PersonHypothesis could gather all targets including their probabilities.

Add attention targets to PersonHypothesis

A new repeated filed allows to express the probability that a person focuses on individual named attention targets.

I'd proposed the attached changes to

- better express the meaning of the new fields
- make them independent of visual focus of attention for more generality
- fix coding conventions (tabs -> spaces, newlines, constraint added, improved naming)

In this form, the additions for attention targets largely resemble the ClassificationResult type and it could be argued that the current VFOA algorithm is more or less a classification algorithm. Personally, I would, however, use the more specifically named type here to be more expressive and allow further domain-specific changes which wouldn't be possible with the general classification result type. Any opinions on that?

Uh, sorry. Your suggestion would also work for me.
